DLT-FBSC Announces National Institute of Health BPA Contract Award

Blanket Purchase Agreement Provides Vehicle for Information Technology Products

Wilmington, Delaware, August 29, 2011, DLT Federal Business Systems Corporation (DLT-FBSC) today announced that the National Institute of Health (NIH) has awarded the company a blanket purchase agreement (BPA) for the purchase of Information Technology (IT) products. Under the terms of the BPA, all National Institute of Health procurement will be able to purchase IT products and services at a negotiated discounted price. The BPA is a one-year contract with renewal options.

Venesa Puchowski, Senior Account Executive stated, "The National Institute of Health has been a valued customer of DLT-FBSC. Our Mission is to provide customer focused, quality driven solutions that exceed our customers' expectations. We offer superior performance by identifying customer requirements and assigning knowledgeable, dedicated staff to achieve optimum results. This BPA strengthens our relationship and gives DLT-FBSC the opportunity to further service the National Institute of Health with technology solutions."

As a part of the BPA, all NIH procurement personnel will have access to a variety of services offered by DLT-FBSC, including personal account managers. Our understanding of government technology environments and purchasing requirements enables us to serve our federal clients with a unique perspective, comprehensive IT solutions, and unsurpassed service. National Institute of Health procurement personnel will have the option to procure IT products and services by telephone or online purchases discounted via DLT-FBSC comprehensive website.
